Foreword

THIS spring catalogue for 1938 comes to you in place of our garden calender which we have published for the past few years. We feel that with this additional space we can give more help in cultural notes and detailed descriptions than we were able to the former way. The decision as to which is preferable rests with you and your comments and suggestions will be appreciated.

We extend a cordial invitation to you to drop in at our Nursery any time that you are driving by to see the different plants in flower. There is someone in attendance weekdays and Sundays until dark who will gladly show you our nursery.

This will mark our twelfth year in business and we hope through your continued interest that we may grow more helpful each year in the always engrossing and fascinating field of horticulture.

Four Winds Perennials

TO PRODUCE quality perennials requires proper equipment, understanding of their cultural requirements and necessary time and care to test the new and rare varieties that are continually being brought before the gardening public's attention.

Four Winds' policy is to grow only the best and to grow these in a manner to assure their success when transplanted to someone's garden. No expense is spared in combatting insect and disease pests so that all plants going out of our nursery are healthy. Strains of perennials that do not come up to our standards are ruthlessly discarded.
